WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt has sent a message to the French government warning it against agreeing to any change in the status quo of French possessions in the western world, the state department announced today.

The note, which Secretary of State Hull said was sent several days ago, was based upon the policy adopted by the Pan-American nations at Havana opposing any change in the territorial status of European possessions in the western hemisphere. The text of the communication was not made public.

The president's message, the state department later revealed, Gaston Henri-Haye by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at a conference Thursday night.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Too much cannot be said about the New Castle high school band for their excellent performance at football games, and last night was no exception. The band makes a good appearance and carried out their marching drills in first class order.

In paving city streets, Pa New thinks it would be to New Castle's advantage to pave some of the streets that surround New Castle's Taggart stadium. Out of town people attending games here probably don't get a favorable impression of our streets. Paving would also greatly aid in handling the traffic problem around the stadium.

Numerous minor auto accidents were reported in the district this morning, largely due to the fact that a heavy fog hung over the highways. It was one of the densest fogs of the fall.

Work of amending part of Jefferson street between the public square and Grant street, is under way. Half of the thoroughfare its entire length is being done at one time, and traffic allowed on the other half.

Traffic on East Washington street, between North Mill and Mercer streets, was held up for over half an hour Saturday morning when the motor of a large dumping truck stalled on the east side street car tracks. A coal truck came along and kindly offered to tow the stalled truck with a heavy chain, returning normalcy to traffic. Long lines of cars were stopped on both sides of the street, as well as two street cars and a large crowd of pedestrians.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The navy today revealed an $80,000,000 expansion in new armor plate production as shortages of this commodity threatened temporary disruption of the two-ocean navy program.

A confidential report to secretary of the navy Knox disclosed that naval officials will seek to triple the output of armor plate forgings by three private steel companies and at the government's Charleston, W. Va., ordnance plant.

Approximately $34,000,000 in new facilities for armor plate production will be located at the Bethlehem Steel and the Midvale companies, while $45,000,000 worth of new equipment will be placed at the Charleston plant. Expansion of the armor plate operations at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company also is being undertaken. These are the only sources of armor plate available to the government.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—In a last minute effort to prevent France from turning against Great Britain and joining the Axis, King George VI today sent a special message to Marshal Henri Petain assuring him that Britain ultimately will win the war and France will share in the benefits of that victory.

King George's extraordinary and dramatic message was intended to reach Petain before the council of ministers met to decide the fateful question of whether France should back the Axis powers as the probable winners of the European conflict, or defy Germany and Italy in the hope of an ultimate British victory.

Assures of Victory
In addition to assuring the aged French marshal of an ultimate British victory, King George expressed encouragement and sympathy for the sufferings of the French people.

The announcement given out in London concerning the king's sensational move said:

"It is authoritatively stated that His Majesty the King has sent a message to the chief of staff of France, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

"The message is understood to have been one of encouragement, coupled with sympathy for the sufferings of the French people.

Hull Attacks Statements Of John L. Lewis

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Attacking the statement of C. I. O. Leader John L. Lewis that President Roosevelt is attempting to drag this nation into war, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that the assertion was "100 per cent wrong," adding that the president is only seeking the maintenance of peace.

Hull has said several times that he would remain aloof from the presidential campaign except to correct what he considered Republican mis-statements of facts about the administration's foreign policy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O., and a ranking New Deal supporter for seven years, today marched under the presidential banner of Wendell Willkie, after condemning the third term ambition of President Roosevelt as threatening the United States with dictatorship and war.

Lewis burned all his bridges behind him in a dramatic speech, broadcast to 30,000,000 people. He predicted the election of Mr. Willkie, appealed to his C. I. O. following to vote for the G. O. P. nominee and then promised to resign as president of the C. I. O. should they ignore his advice and Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected.

Willkie did not hear Lewis' broadcast last night, in which the chief and founder of the C. I. O. entirely divorced himself from support of the president, because he was speaking in Wilkes-Barre's armory at the time Lewis was on the air.

However, radio engineers aboard his train recorded the Lewis broadcast and when Willkie returned to his train he heard the speech from

As soon as he had completed his own broadcast, the Republican presidential candidate issued a statement in which he said in part:

"I am naturally gratified by the address of Mr. John L. Lewis.

"Mr. Lewis' eloquent and unqualified endorsement in our crusade is a great stride toward bringing the spontaneous unity of action and purpose that will follow as soon as we are elected.

Germany Claims Big Liner Sunk

Empress Of Britain Bombed
And Sunk By Planes Is Announcement

NO CONFIRMATION
COMES FROM LONDON

BULLETIN
(International News Service)

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The luxury liner Empress of Britain has been bombed and sunk off the northern coast of Ireland, it was announced officially in Berlin today.

The announcement said the 42,348-ton Canadian Pacific liner went down this morning after being sighted by German bombing planes within the German blockade zone.

The bombers scored direct hits on the large liner, which began to sink immediately, according to the German statement.

Members of the crew took to the boats.

Editor's note: If true, the German announcement represents the greatest aerial-versus-marine victory ever achieved by the air power of the nation. And still on the basis that the Nazi claim is true, destruction of this floating palace raises the grave question of whether thousands of Britain's colonial troops perished with the giant liner. Presumably the Empress of Britain has been engaged in ferrying British forces from Empire outposts to the homeland, similarly to the Queen Mary and the Mauretania which have been variously reported as far from Southampton as Singapore and other empire bases.

The Empress of Britain, one of the most famous of the Canadian Pacific liners, was launched in 1931. The 733-foot vessel transported thousands of American travellers in time of peace.

Knife Wound

WIFE BEING HELD
BY CITY POLICE

Walter Dixon, aged 27, of 20 East Division street, is dead, having died at 12:57 a. m. today in the New Castle hospital from knife wounds reportedly inflicted by his wife, Lella May, 26, in Home street, near the Colored Elks club, at 12:30 a. m. Both are colored. She is under arrest.

According to Mrs. Dixon's statement to police, her husband struck her near her left eye, following which she hit at him with a pen-knife she had concealed in her bosom. The knife struck his throat. She claims she threw the knife away. It has not been found. He turned around and went across Home street toward the club. She walked through Home street to Jefferson street, thence to Division street, where she was taken into custody by Policemen Showalter, Flinner and Lieutenant Kennedy.

Robert Mitchell helped James Hill put the fatally wounded man in Hill's car and Dixon was rushed to the New Castle hospital. Officers R. Richards and U. G. Harper notified police headquarters of the crime, and the search for Dixon's assailant got under way, with her subsequent capture.

According to reports obtained by the police, Dixon is a Johnson Bronze company employee. Mrs. Dixon is the mother of four children. Her oldest child is seven years old.

Earlier in the night Mrs. Dixon, accompanied by Louise Burley, had visited a physician, later returning home. She noticed her husband talking to a woman in an auto near their home.

Got The Knife
Dixon asserted told his wife, according to her story to police, he did not know the woman. "I got the knife and put it in my bosom," she allegedly informed police.

VICHY, Oct. 26.—France has decided to accept the principle of collaboration with Germany, it was officially announced here this evening.

The main object of France's decision to cooperate with Germany is the organization of peace in Europe, an official communication said.

A gigantic peace offer is likely to be made to Great Britain in this connection, it was learned.

Official announcement of the Pe-tain government's decision to bring France into the Axis orbit followed a fateful meeting of the French council of ministers, presided over by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

Last Minute Appeals
The decision was taken despite a last minute appeal from King George of Great Britain to Marshal Petain imploring him to rely on an ultimate British victory. It also followed receipt by Petain of a special message from President Roosevelt.

R. A. F. Bombers Hit German Areas

Report Massive Air Raids Staged

Widely Separated Areas Of Germany Are Attacked Is London Report

LONG RANGE GUNS ALSO IN ACTION

By MERRILL MUELLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Oct. 26.—Fanning out over thousands of square miles, royal air force bombers early today attacked widely separated areas of Germany and staged massive raids on German towns and ports along the channel coast.

The bombing attacks against the Nazi "Big Berthas" followed a mighty duel of shells and bombs that rocked both sides of the English channel.

A terse air ministry announcement said: "R. A. F. bombers during the night attacked German naval bases, oil targets in central and northern Germany, airfields in enemy-occupied territory and gun emplacements on the channel coast."

Huge fires illuminated the Nazi-held French coast for miles as the British squadrons blasted the shoreline and pushed inland against objectives within the Reich itself.

Hurl Shells Across
Before midnight British and German long-range guns hurled shells back and forth across the Straits of Dover, forcing thousands of men, women and children to flee from their quaking houses along the Kentish coast. They flocked to beaches and cliffs to watch the spectacle.

The artillery duel began as guns on each side fired on shipping convoys on each side of the straits, but quickly developed into a roaring artillery and aerial battle heavier than anything English coastal observers had seen before.

As darkness fell swarms of British bombers sped over the channel to blast the Big Berthas mounted between Calais and Boulogne. Exploding bombs sent sheets of flame into the sky on the German-occupied side. A few hours later R. A. F. planes carried the attack inland to objectives within Germany.

British warships escorting merchant vessels in the Dover straits joined in the trans-channel battle, hurled anti-aircraft shells against German dive-bombers attacking British ships and the balloon barrage protecting the port of Dover.

It was claimed that not a single British ship was hit, but belief was expressed that several German vessels were struck by British shells.

(Berlin claimed a German plane bombed and "severely damaged" a British destroyer.)

Earlier German coastal artillery bombarded the Dover area, rocking houses with several shell salvos.

later went to the Colored Elks club in Home street. She asserted: "Walter came to our table and we had a bottle of beer. He then went to another table."

This was in the downstairs section of the club, she told police. After her husband had gone to another table, where he was talking to another woman, she reportedly asked him to join her and Louise Burley.

Mrs. Dixon told police she seized hold of her husband's arm. A witness told police she slapped Dixon. It was then that George Turner, a club committeeman, put them out of the clubhouse.

According to a report made to police, Turner told Dixon not to hit Mrs. Dixon, explaining that she was ill and not responsible.

"We went to the north side of Home street," she told police. Dixon reportedly warned Mrs. Dixon not to come near him or he would hurt her.

"He then hit me on the left of my left eye. I hit at him with the knife," she asserted told the police.

After being cut on the neck, Dixon turned and started toward the clubhouse. The wound extended from behind the left ear downward, thence across the throat to the larynx, severing the jugular vein. He was placed in the car of James Hill by Robert Mitchell and Hill, and rushed to the New Castle hospital, where he died soon after admission.

Mrs. Dixon claimed she dropped the pen-knife at the scene of the crime. She later was arrested in Division street between Jefferson and Moravia streets.

Chief of Detectives Ralph A. Criswell and other detectives today sought the knife. However, it had not been found at noon.

Chief of Police W. G. McMullen stated Mrs. Dixon would be charged with murder before Alderman B. J. Biondi some time today.

Walter Dixon was born on May 22, 1913, in Woodbury, Ga., son of Bennie and Pearl Dixon.

He is survived by his wife, Leila; his parents in Woodbury; four children, Walter, Jr., aged seven, Robert Lee, aged five, James, aged three, and John, aged 1½ years; one sister, Nettie Pearl Dixon, and one brother, Bennie Dixon, both of New Castle.

WARNING SENT TO FRANCE FROM UNITED STATES

the secretary said that from the time of the Havana conference this government has had in mind their future as a result of possible political changes in Europe.

There had been, even before the president's note, Hull said, an exchange of views with Vichy on the subjects of its possessions in the Caribbean.

Several days ago, about the time that Pétain met Hitler, he added, the president addressed the note to Vichy restating American policy.

Further than this Hull declined to go despite repeated questions as to the details of the president's message.

The secretary said that Washington had taken notice of King George's message to Vichy on the general subject of the European political situation as it affected France and Great Britain.

He made it clear that the president's message had concerned only the interests of the United States and the other Latin American countries in the status of France's possessions here and not the broader subject of European politics.

The president's message apparently was prompted by reports that the Franco-German conversations involved the possibility of turning the French navy over to Hitler and also allowing the Reich to use France's naval bases.

plete confidence in ultimate victory, the benefits of which France would share."

It was hoped that the personal message from the king would bolster Pétain's spirits sufficiently to encourage him to refuse to accede to any German demand that France enter the war on the side of the Axis powers, or turn the French fleet over to them.

It was also in line with the appeal made to the French people by Prime Minister Winston Churchill the night before Hitler arrived in France for the present negotiations with the Pétain government. In that appeal Churchill implored the French people not to do anything that would "hinder" Britain's desperate fight for victory.

Almost simultaneously with announcement of the king's message, the London Evening Standard published a story by its diplomatic correspondent stating that Pétain may announce his resignation today if Hitler seeks to impose further humiliation on France.

Allow France to Starve

The Standard claimed that Hitler had greeted Pétain with threats that France might be allowed to starve this winter and that 1,500,000 war prisoners would be left in German hands if he did not submit to the Axis demands that France join the "new order" in Europe.

Meanwhile, British circles had no confirmation of Swiss reports that Pétain already has virtually accepted the German demands.

On the contrary, they said, the impression prevails in London that a tug-of-war still is in progress between Pétain and his vice premier, Pierre Laval, who initiated the talks with Hitler.

For this reason, it was believed and hoped in London that the king's message may have a strong influence in staying the hand of the Vichy government and preventing it from falling into the arms of the Reich in exchange for whatever promises Hitler may have offered.

save the most precious things left in this war torn world, the free way of life in America.

"I am glad to have the help of Mr. Lewis—a valiant defender of labor he puts his country above all."

Willkie was openly exultant, not only at receiving the support of the dynamic labor leader but at the whole-hearted manner in which it was given.

He has hinted several times that he would have the support of major figures in the labor field and his recent speeches have included a line to the effect that "I know the leaders of labor and they know me and I have their confidence."

Campaign Stimulated

The candidate believes that he already has the support of industry and business. What he has lacked is the open support of a powerful leader in the labor movement to carry out his theory that he is the only candidate who can claim to have the unified support of labor, industry and business.

Lewis came through and the result was practically jangling in the aisles of the Willkie train.

Nothing has so stimulated the campaign and the candidate. The Willkie supporters do not attempt to predict how many followers of Lewis in the labor field they follow in the political field. They expect that there will be some descent from the position of the leader in the C. I. O.—Nevertheless they feel that the Lewis endorsement, phrased as it was, delivered as it was, will be one of the most important factors in the campaign.

NO ALTERNATIVE BUT TO ACCEPT FRENCH ASSERT

ernment was that it had no alternative but to accept the German proposals for collaboration.

Neutral observers believed that the decision has sealed the fate of France for at least a generation.

There was no indication as to whether France, under the terms of the new understanding with Germany, would turn over any naval or air bases to the Axis powers for use against Great Britain.

Officials placed great emphasis on the statement that the object of France's cooperation with Germany was the establishment of peace in Europe.

It was pointed out that the Pétain government did not say it was cooperating with the axis powers for a reorganization of Europe, but rather in the hope of bringing about an end to the war.

A declaration concerning the Pétain government's decision to cooperate with Germany was drafted at the council meeting. It is understood that a similar declaration will be issued by the German government.

Details of the means of making this cooperation effective will be worked out later.

Buxton-Reynolds Wedding In Highland U. P. Church Today

White mums in tall standards, against a solid green background of leafy ferns, and graceful palms, artistically arranged, decorated the altar of the Highland United Presbyterian church, for the pretty wedding this morning, of Miss Emma Belle Buxton, daughter of the late Roy Buxton and Mrs. Hermia Buxton of 409 East Sheridan avenue, when she became the bride of William Clark Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Reynolds, 128 Northview avenue, the ceremony being witnessed by a throng of guests.

Dr. D. L. Ferguson, pastor, pronounced the service at 10:30 o'clock, using the impressive single ring service.

The bride, was attractive in a costume suit of Indian Penny wool, patterned along smart lines, with matching hat. Her under-arm bag which also matched, was encrusted with a corsage of purple orchids, introducing a new note in wedding parties. Her other accompaniments, were carried out in black.

Miss Katherine Gano as maid of honor and only attendant, was attired in Cunard wool costume suit, also fashioned along similar lines, and her accessories were in sand brown. She too, wore a corsage on her matching under-arm bag. It was made up of yellow roses.

Chris A. Clark served as best man, and ushering, were Deane E. Smith and Robert C. Howe.

Contributing further to the impressiveness of the event, Mrs. Jay L. Reed, organist, played a selected program of nuptial music preceding the ceremony, and, during the exchange of vows, she resounded soft, echoes of numbers which speak of love, life and happiness.

The Lohengrin Wedding March was used for the processional, and Mendelssohn's was played for the recessional. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Buxton chose an aqua dress, with dubonnet accessories, and shoulder bouquet to harmonize. Mrs. Reynolds wore a soldier blue dress, with Navy accompaniments, and a shoulder corsage, to contrast.

A congratulatory period took place in the vestibule of the church, and supplementing the ceremony, a brunch was served at The Castleton. Places marked for twenty guests, including immediate relatives and the bridal party. Appointments were in keeping with the nuptial motif, flowers of the season being used.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

WHEN SCHOOL STRAINS CHILD'S NERVES

Your child who always seemed healthy, happy and cooperative may, a few weeks after entering school, grow jittery, quarrelsome and stubborn. A cheery, smiling youngster once, he may grow suddenly peevish and ill-natured. He may not go to sleep promptly nor sleep soundly. He may have a strained demeanor and often cry. He may be hard to manage and get along with.

The change in a child may have resulted from the new experiences at school—less opportunity to move about freely, problems of adaptation to so many other children, stimulation from the classroom and playground activities. Then he may feel the need of competing in lessons and play. Or perhaps he may suffer from eyestrain.

Any such irregularity in the schoolchild should suggest the need of a complete check by a physician, probably also by an eye specialist, and more strictness in the child's routine. Be sure he goes to bed early enough and does not rise too early. Let him learn to sleep in the morning till called at a regular time it can be done.

Curb Exciting Diversions
Exciting radio programs, always bad for the child, are especially harmful to the nervous child and should be summarily forbidden. Also he should not go to the movies often. His parents should, however, treat him with great patience and generous affection.

In extreme cases, this child should be required to lie down half an hour before the evening meal. Dad might quiet him then by reading to him. He should lie down for at least one hour on Saturday and on Sunday.

On the advice of the physician, this child should stay home from school a day or half-day a week, varying the days, until marked improvement is shown. The wise teacher will assign this child to special brief rest periods at school. In keeping with the newer trends, she will have all her children in the primary grades lie down on the floor or tables for fifteen or twenty minutes a day.

Teach Self-Defense
No doubt more children grow nervous after entering school because of problems of getting along with other children than because of problems of book learning. Some children are in constant dread of bullies, especially if they lack the courage to stand up in self-defense with their fists. Boxing lessons, should help a few of these intimidated children.

Parents of tots should encourage these youngsters to get into the rough and tumble of the neighborhood playground, fighting their own battles and settling their own quarrels. The better the child in these early years has learned to get along with other children, his age the fewer problems he will have after entering school and the less likely, therefore, he will be to suffer from nervous strain.

"LESE MAJESTY"

Supporters of President Roosevelt are objecting strenuously to the fact that Candidate Wilkie is pouring criticism on the President.

One of the important values of our Republic form of government is the freedom with which citizens and the press can criticize their public officials. Franklin Roosevelt may reply or he may not reply when he is criticized, and even if he chooses not to make a reply directly, he can make it through any of his large group of lieutenants.

Especially during a campaign for a third term, an unusual performance in the light of the actions of Washington and Jefferson, should criticism be welcome by the supporters of the president. These supporters contend that they do not fear the results of the violation of the third term tradition for they insist that the President does not desire to be a Dictator. But if any menace to the Republic exists in the violation of that tradition, the menace is greatly enhanced through the taking of the position that the office of President is beyond criticism. Add immunity to criticism to a third term and there is definitely established the basis for a Totalitarian Dictatorship in this country.

If the citizens of the United States are to give up the tradition of the third term and at the same time give up the privilege of criticizing the President to their heart's content, then is the way paved for the loss of all freedom in this Nation.

It is understood that between now and election President Roosevelt will devote his time to inspecting Chairman Flynn's defense plants and to preventing the chairman from holding press conferences.

If we are to meet down town for lunch, dinner or a show, she shows the same indifference to time. How can I break her of this bad habit?"

Inasmuch as she is "perfect" in every other respect you are evidently willing to waste enough time to try to break her of a habit that usually proves chronic, once it manifests itself.

By all means show your displeasure, at first humorously, then seriously, and at last, angrily. Girls selfish enough to thus waste a man's time are almost invariably creatures of idle leisure who while pursuing no careers of their own, have never learned the value of time to themselves or others. Those whose responsibilities require them to be at their desks promptly are the ones who most respect the time which a man's similar responsibilities allow him. Such girls are usually on the minute for engagements social as well as professional. And this is one of the reasons why career girls are becoming more and more popular than idle girls as candidates for matrimony.

Question: Is it proper for a man to take the arm of a woman with whom he is walking along the street or should she take his? My fiancée and I have had an argument about this matter. He says I should take his arm and I say he should take mine—Anne.

Answer: It is decidedly in bad taste for a man and woman to link arms while walking along the street. If they are walking on dangerous paving, a slippery surface or a poorly lighted thoroughfare, he should offer his arm to protect her against tripping or falling. But he should not take her arm.

If there is any special reason why the woman needs assistance at street crossings, he should instead of taking her by the elbow, offer his arm that she may slip her hand through it and maintain her balance.

Value Of Strong Navy Is Discussed
Modern Planes Don't Destroy Worth
Surface Strength Bottles Up Axis

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—"We told you so," is the burden of our naval experts' song these days.

What they told us was that, while planes are exceedingly useful in wartime, they by no means have made water-borne fighting vessels obsolete, as many aviation enthusiasts have been asserting that they've done in recent years.

The sea's surface scrappers were rather groggy, for a while after the current world conflict started, in insisting upon the essential character of their own comparatively old-fashioned service to guarantee a nation's rulership of the ocean.

Aviation, they had to admit, is spectacular. It's new, too, whereas the battleship and cruiser, whirling around on the brine, just as the Ark did, as far back as the time of Noah, are no novelty. Consequently the flyers, objects of intense, almost unsatisfied curiosity, got all the headlines. Stories of what was going on underneath generally were relegated to the back pages.

Now though, the navy boys are beginning to call attention to the fact that the British fleet has everything afloat pretty completely dominated.

German airmen do a lot of damage, scouting over John Bull's island, but they can't land there except to be captured, and seemingly they can't do by boat even across as narrow a stretch as the English channel; Mr. Bull's fleet won't let 'em.

Italy has a formidable force in North Africa, jabbing at Suez, through Egypt. But this force has to have supplies to accomplish anything. It can get 'em only across the Mediterranean and Mr. Bull's fleet controls the Mediterranean.

Italy's aviation arm is known to be first class. It was expected to put the British Mediterranean squadron out of business. It doesn't do it. That, say our army folk, is because aviation isn't what it's cracked up to be.

Supplies Bottled
Neither Germany nor Italy can get things they need from overseas. They get some of them overland, from the eastward, but not everything they require. The British fleet has 'em bottled up from the Atlantic and Mediterranean directions.

Planes can't transport big bulk commodities. But England gets, from the side of the water, whatever stuff it wants and can pay for. Why doesn't Axis aviation put a stop to it? Because, reply our navy critics, it's a task that aviation isn't equal to; that takes surface strength.

Germany is desperately anxious to keep up its trade with South America. German producers of their kind of stuff, that there's a South American demand for, have made oodles of contracts with South American concerns, promising deliveries and undertaking to penalize themselves financially if such deliveries aren't effected. And they can't deliver. The South Americans, such as Brazil and Argentina, are scooping in the penalties, from German holdings; in their various republics, planes can't make deliveries, and they can't be made otherwise, because the British fleet won't permit it.

That's how our navy critics explain the situation.

Only An Adjunct
They don't undertake, to be sure, to dispute the vital importance of aviation. The point that surface fighters' army as well as navy make is that it's merely an arm of their respective services. They both concede that either one of them might be fatally handicapped minus capable flyers. They maintain, however, that aviation's an adjunct only—just like guns and ammunition.

Indeed, they frequently refer to a bombing plane as a projectile. Of course planes are invaluable for observation purposes also, but that's a different consideration.

The plan, didn't get much of a try-out during the last war; it wasn't sufficiently developed then. Military men have their minds very well made up now.

They're fully satisfied that aviation hasn't made the surface fighter's back number.

I think they're glad of it. A general or an admiral usually doesn't like to think that some new invention has made the profession, that he's devoted his life to, as extinct as a dodo.

On "Falsification"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. IT is easy for the President of the United States, as he did on Wednesday night, to call his opponent a deliberate liar. Though he strenuously omitted to mention his name, that is what Mr. Roosevelt did and that was his advertised intention.

IT was taking advantage of his position, and it was not a courageous thing to do, because he knows that in return his opponent cannot call him a deliberate liar. In this country it is a tradition—and a sound one—that the President must not be directly accused of lying. Yet it would be easy for Mr. Wilkie to make as strong a case of "deliberate falsification" against the third-termers as Mr. Roosevelt made against the Republicans. Perhaps he would already have done so before this is printed, but certainly some of the falsifications are glaringly obvious.

FOR example, there is the complete falsification of the "draft," the pretense that Mr. Roosevelt did not calculate the coming of his own nomination; that it was not engineered by Kelly, Flynn, Hague and his own personal subordinates, including Ickes, Hopkins, Corcoran, Cohen and Jackson. Then there is the false pretense that since his nomination he has been too absorbed in the grave problems of the Presidency to think about an open campaign, whereas it is a provable fact that he has been using the White House as his political headquarters, mapping out not only his political strategy, but attending to the details.

THERE is also the false pretense that these "inspection tours," paid for out of Government money, are necessary or helpful to the defense program upon which we are engaged, whereas they have in reality been campaign tours, eagerly seized upon by the New Deal politicians to promote his candidacy and theirs. It would be possible also for Mr. Wilkie to brand as a deliberate falsification that first speech by Mr. Henry Wallace, approved and applauded by Mr. Roosevelt, in which he tried to label the Republicans, by which he meant Mr. Wilkie, as the party of appeasement.

AND he might with equal justice characterize as "deliberate falsifications" statements made by Mr. Roosevelt's attorney general, Mr. Jackson, in which, in contradiction of the facts, he asserted that Mr. Wilkie's nomination had been brought about by powerful and sinister financial interests, which had dominated the Republican convention, organized a synthetic storm of telegrams and now conspired to put him in the White House as their agent. Without the slightest foundation, Mr. Jackson, from whom none is closer to Mr. Roosevelt, made these and other allegations 15 minutes before Mr. Roosevelt launched upon his "deliberate falsification" speech.

THE truth is that that speech was a cleverly calculated piece of campaigning which the smart boys who assist Mr. Roosevelt in his speeches believed, with the charm of the Roosevelt personality and the mag-

College Boys Hitch-Hike On Willkie Train

Hitch hiking a ride on a presidential nominee's special train is tops for something or other and four Westminster College students have the distinction of doing it.

James Ludwig of Pittsburgh, Jack Cochran of Aliquippa, Bill McMinn of Mt. Lebanon and Ralph Johnson of Sharon were at the Willkie meeting in Sharon Thursday when Wendell L. Willkie addressed a crowd of voters.

Noticing the bigwigs on the train had ribbons on, the boys purchased similar ribbons pinned them on their coats and boarded the special train headed for Warren, O.

Mr. Willkie got a kick out of the students hitchhiking and had his picture taken with them. The young men met most of the dignitaries on the train and had a lot of fun before they got to Warren.

The committee plans a complete study of all problems affecting agriculture, both domestic and foreign, and will take whatever measures are necessary to solve these problems.

JOHN L. LEWIS TAKES STAND AGAINST THIRD TERM FOR ROOSEVELT

During his election, New Dealers discounted it upon the ground that many C.I.O. unions already have endorsed Mr. Roosevelt and will not follow Lewis into the Republican column.

Neutral observers expect the endorsement to give material aid to Willkie in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and on the west coast.

Where Lewis has strong C.I.O. followings. If the presidential election is close in any of these states, they add, the Lewis endorsement may well give Willkie victory.

Lewis incidentally has been "with the winner" ever since 1920. He was a Republican until 1932, when he voted for Roosevelt without taking any particular public part in the election. In 1936, however, he was the leading Roosevelt supporter, raising a $500,000 fund for the New Deal's campaign chest and supporting the president in many other ways through his labor organizations.

The Lewis speech was divided into three parts. In the first, he condemned Roosevelt. In the second, he praised Willkie. In the third, he pleaded dramatically with labor, with his own C.I.O. unions, with mine workers, with Negroes, with youth, with Christians and lastly, with mothers to "lead the revolt against the candidate who plays at a game that may make cannon fodder of your sons."

Charge Made

Lewis first made this charge: "Those who hear these words and who have studied the public addresses of the president, from his Chicago 'quarantine' speech to his Charlottesville 'stab in the back' address, and thence to Dayton and Philadelphia, will understand his motivation and his objective. It is war."

"His every act leads one to this inescapable conclusion. The president has said that he hates war."

Violent Election National Evil

"I think the re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term would be a national evil of the first magnitude. He no longer hears the cries of the people. I think that the election of Mr. Wendell Willkie is imperative in relation to the country's needs."

Finally, Lewis made an "all out" appeal to C.I.O. workers to vote for Willkie by laying his labor leadership on the Republican nominee's altar. He said, in solemnly serious tones:

"It is obvious that President Roosevelt will not be re-elected for the third term, unless he has the overwhelming support of the men and women of labor. If he is, therefore, re-elected, it will mean that the members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations have rejected my advice and recommendation."

"I will accept the result as being the equivalent of a vote of no confidence, and will retire as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, at its convention in November. This action will save our great movement, composed of millions of men and women, from the embarrassment and handicap of my leadership during the ensuing reign of President Roosevelt."

and will work for peace, but his acts do not match his words."

Asserting the "present concentration of power in the office of the president has never before been equalled in the history of our country," Lewis added:

"How startling, therefore, is the spectacle of a president who is disinclined to surrender that power, in keeping with the traditions of the republic . . . ."

"America needs no superman. America wants no royal family. Our forebears paid the price in blood, agony, privation and sorrow, requisite for the building of this republic. Are we to yield to the appetite for power and the vaunting ambitions of a man who plays with the lives of human beings for a pastime?"

"I say 'no' . . . it is time for the manhood and the womanhood of America to assert themselves. Tomorrow may be too late."

Will Answer To No Man

"If President Roosevelt is re-established in office in the forthcoming election, he will answer to no man, including the congress, for his executive acts. That may create a dictatorship in this land."

The C.I.O. leader hotly condemned the president for failing to solve the unemployment problem. Lewis said: "Consider the astounding facts: 45,000,000 people in this land suffering from insufficient food and undernourishment, 20,000,000 of whom are required to live on an actual expenditure of fifteen cents a day. This, in a land of plenty, with its services and its goods overflowing with surplus farm commodities which the farmer is unable to sell."

Lewis next asked what will happen to Americans when the 25,000,000 soldiers and 70,000,000 "citizens who service these armies" return to peacetime pursuits.

"As a literal fact," he added, "the record of the last seven years is proof sufficient that the Roosevelt administration is incapable of meeting this situation and maintaining this nation's rightful share of world commerce."

Declares For Willkie

Then Lewis declared his choice for Willkie. Facing the question squarely, Lewis said:

"If not Roosevelt, whom do I recommend to do the job of making secure our nation and its people. Why, of course, I recommend the election of Wendell L. Willkie as the president of the United States."

"He is a gallant American. He has opened his heart to the American people. He is not an aristocrat. He has the common touch. He was born in the briar and not to the purple. He has worked with his hands. He has known the pangs of hunger. He has had experience in various fields of American enterprise, and is an administrator and an executive."

Lewis then cited Willkie's campaign pledges to solve the unemployment problem, protect the rights of labor, reduce the cost of government by his attending taxes, and to keep the United States out of foreign wars.

Lewis added: "Can he accomplish such a task, many will ask. It is my considered judgment that if Wendell Willkie is elected president, this task can and will be done."

"Can we believe Mr. Willkie, some will ask. I reply that I have confidence in Mr. Willkie's integrity and honor . . . ."

Roosevelt Election National Evil

"I think the re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term would be a national evil of the first magnitude. He no longer hears the cries of the people. I think that the election of Mr. Wendell Willkie is imperative in relation to the country's needs."

Finally, Lewis made an "all out" appeal to C.I.O. workers to vote for Willkie by laying his labor leadership on the Republican nominee's altar. He said, in solemnly serious tones:

"It is obvious that President Roosevelt will not be re-elected for the third term, unless he has the overwhelming support of the men and women of labor. If he is, therefore, re-elected, it will mean that the members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations have rejected my advice and recommendation."

The Great Game Of Politics

ic of his radio voice, would completely crush Mr. Willkie. It was inspired by the Willkie gains of the past two weeks, by the shortening of the betting odds and the fact that a certain amount of apprehension had diluted the confidence of the Roosevelt managers.

The decision was reached to give Mr. Willkie "the worker." So far as possible, with Mr. Roosevelt preceded on the air by his subservient attorney general and followed by the vituperative LaGuardia, that was what they did.

BUT they didn't crush him. And, although it is planned to utilize from now on to the end the full weight of the President and his aides in a great oratorical attack, it is not likely to crush him. It will more slowly him down than the eggs and tomatoes which have been thrown at him and his wife have slowed him down. Win or lose, he'll finish fighting; and even some of his opponents are conceding that he is a gallant fighter. There is no question about the effective character of the Roosevelt radio delivery. When one listens to him, he seems unshakable. It is only when one gets off and thinks of what he has said, or reads it the next day, that the lack of candor is clear. For example, it was neither frank nor fair to accuse Mr. Willkie of deliberate falsification when he said Mr. Roosevelt had "telephoned" Hitler and Mussolini, before the Munich conference, without recalling to the people that within an hour Mr. Willkie had himself corrected that statement and that the only inaccuracy in it was that he had used the word "telephoned" instead of "telegraphed."

IF a newspaper editor or critic had made such an omission, Mr. Roosevelt would have used it—and been justified, too, to indict the press as dishonest and unfair. Of course, on this question of candor, certainly a strong case can be made out against the third-term candidate, who pictures to the people how much he has done for them, but ignores the fact that the prosperity to which he points is artificially created by the defense billions and that in pouring out government funds in all directions for seven years he has undermined the security of everybody with a life-insurance policy and a savings account by bringing the government to the brink of bankruptcy.

IT seems too bad that in its final stage, with the world abroad in torment, that the campaign should get down to the level where two Presidential candidates, in effect, are calling each other "deliberate falsifiers." It is discouraging to those who feel that whatever the outcome of election day, national unity during the period of defense preparations is essential. But there can be no doubt that it is the President who has brought it to that level. One reason for thinking that his purpose in so doing is to evade and obscure the real question in the campaign—to wit: why, pushing aside the unbroken tradition of 150 years, he should seek a third term as the Indispensable Man—is that he so completely ignores it.

Say one thing for dictator lands. Worried patriots don't stand around wishing somebody would tell them how to help.

I was greatly relieved and pleased when I learned the other day that we are in no danger of a cod liver oil shortage this winter. There were grounds for fears of a shortage because we have always imported the great bulk of this product from Norway and of course, since the invasion of that country, exports of cod liver oil have dropped away to nothing. Naturally it appeared we would have to get along on the somewhat scant supply of the oil manufactured in the United States and Canada.

Latest information shows, however, that importers began to prepare for just such an emergency as this and imported large quantities of the product from Norway before the invasion. Also, plants have sprung up in Canada and the United States to produce the oil. That is even better news. I never could understand why it was necessary for us to go all the way to Norway for cod oil. Aren't the majority of the cod caught on the Grand Banks, just a few miles off the shores of Canada? The natives of Newfoundland are terribly poor. Many of the fishermen who live along the coast never see money. Cod fish is their medium of exchange, and if the catch is poor, or the prices bad, as they usually are, then the poor are in a bad way. It is in order, then, for cod liver oil to be encouraged in Newfoundland.

Perhaps persons who haven't been following this column for long will wonder why I am or was, so concerned about a shortage of cod liver oil. Well, the season of colds is rapidly approaching and in my opinion, the "sunshine vitamins" in cod liver oil are about the best preventative of colds there are. What cod liver oil does is supply to our bodies the vitamins that the rays of the sun give us in the summer months but which greatly diminish when the sun's rays begin to wane a bit beginning with September or October.

We have used cod liver oil extensively in the nursery here at Callander ever since the Dionne quintuplets were born, and I could write reams about what it has done for those children. I'm not advocating it for children only. It is equally desirable for adults.

To the quintuplets, the daily dose of cod liver oil is as much a matter of routine as brushing their teeth, or washing their hands. We give it to them the year around, as a precaution. In our latitude, even in summer, the sun does not provide enough "sunshine vitamin" for growing children, it seems to me.

Remember, cod liver oil isn't a cure for a cold, it is strictly a preventive. Begin taking it early in the fall. Don't wait until you get a cold, and then take it.

John Davis Class Hallowe'en Party

Program Presented in Basement Of Mahoning Methodist Church

In the basement of the Mahoning Methodist church the John Davis Bible class gave a hallowe'en party on Friday evening with a good number in attendance.

Various hallowe'en games were the diversion of the evening, which included "ducking" apples in a large tub of water, and bobbing apples attached to a string.

The "ghosts" captained by Mrs. Milton Butts, superseded the "spooks", captained by Mrs. Don VanHorn, in capturing the most awards in the games. Mrs. Wendell McClurg, Mrs. Paul Shaw, Paul Jones and Mrs. Milton Butts won individual prizes. Paul Shaw won the prize for having the best costume.

Girl Scout Week To Open Sunday

Founder Of Scout Work, Juliette Low, Will Be Honored

The celebration of Girl Scout week scheduled for October 27 through November 2, brings to a climax an unusually busy and exciting autumn season for over half a million girl scouts throughout the United States.

The organization of local Service Bureau as part of the national program of coordination has stimulated girl scouts to increase participation not only in this specific community service project, but also in all girl scout activities which can be turned to good account in behalf of community and national welfare.

Individually and as separate groups New Castle scouts have given service to various community organizations, notably the Community Chest, of which they are a member agency, and the Red Cross, according to a recent report. Because of the increased need for disciplined, dependable volunteer help, plans are under way for organizing a central bureau in New Castle to the end that the wisest use may be made of the girls desiring to help.

Girl scout week is divided into seven service days, each of which illustrates a phase of the girl scout program of activities. Through the cooperation of the public library, facilities have been made available for New Castle troops to present a series of exhibits showing work which has been done in troops during the past year. Community and world knowledge have a special timeliness.

Juliette Low, who founded girl scouting in this country, and whose birthday on October 31, is observed during this nationwide celebration of girl scout week, envisioned the movement as an opportunity for girls to develop the skills, resources and tastes which would make them well-rounded, useful, intelligent citizens. The culmination of activities and the focussing of them upon citizenship and community tribute this year to Mrs. Low's foresight and understanding.

Sons Of Italy Banquet Tonight

Promptly at 6:30 o'clock, a delicious full course chicken and spaghetti dinner will be served to guests numbering approximately hundreds, according to reports of the various committees.

Following the meal, an elaborate program will be presented, including guest speakers and honored guests. Salvatore Parisi, supreme financial secretary of New York City will be present, as well as representatives from out-of-town lodges. Angelo Casaccia will be toastmaster this evening.

Dancing will be in vogue later, the music to be furnished by a local popular orchestra, commencing at 9 o'clock, and lasting until 12 p. m.

The affair is under the supervision of the banquet officers, Louis DePaolo, chairman; Mrs. Vito Colella, assistant chairman; Louis Bosco, vice chairman.

NEW CASTLE DEFEATS CLEVELAND TEAM 31 TO 0

New Castle Speed Bewilders Ohioans

New Castle Hangs Up Seventh Win Of Year At Taggart Stadium Friday; Bucci And Ciazza Score Two Touchdowns Apiece In Rout Of John Adams High; Friedman Of Visiting Team Suffers Broken Leg; Johnstown Next; Crowd Is Estimated At 5,000.

PILING UP 25 points in the first two periods last night at Taggart stadium a hard fighting undefeated "Red Hurricane" football team of New Castle High coasted to a 31 to 0 victory over a big John Adams High team of Cleveland. About 5,000 fans were in the stands.

It marked the first time that a Cleveland team has ever appeared on a New Castle schedule. The visitors from Ohio proved to be the biggest team New Castle has faced all year, however they could not match the speed and agility of the locals.

The first downs favored New Castle 10 to 3. New Castle's line from end to end played a nice game. The John Adams high backfield was bottled up most of the game. They never gained much ground on the New Castle starters. After Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh inserted his second stringers Cleveland picked up yardage but could not get near the goal line. Never was the Cleveland team inside the New Castle 30-yard line.

Ciazza Tallies
New Castle's first touchdown came soon after the opening kickoff as has been the case most frequently this year. John Adams elected to receive. Adamo kicked off and the game began. Three times the Ohioans ran the ball and made exactly three yards. Probst elected to kick and Roberts, taking the ball on his own 42, returned to the New Castle 47. Roberts, on the first play, clicked off 11 yards for a first down on the Adams 38. Ciazza made eight. Lee made a first down on the Adams 24. Ciazza went around left end for nine more. New Castle drew a 5-yard off-side penalty.

Roberts clicked for a first down on the Adams 13. Lee picked up three yards and then Sammy Ciazza walked around left end and was over for the first New Castle touchdown. Adamo missed the try for an extra point.

New Castle, gaining possession of the ball on a punt from Probst of the Cleveland team midway in the first period, scored its second touchdown. Ciazza again going over from the 12-yard line on the new streamlined Statue of Liberty play. New Castle had previously suffered two penalties while within the shadows of the John Adams goal posts. Adamo again missed the try for an extra point. New Castle 12, John Adams 0. And that's the way the first period ended.

Bucci Scores On Pass
The "Red Hurricanes" scored touchdown No. 3 midway in the second period. Lee passing to Bucci from the Adams 46-yard line and the rangy New Castle left end ran about 20 yards after spearing the ball. Bucci tried the extra point and missed. New Castle 18, John Adams 0.

Adamo kicked off to John Adams after the third New Castle touchdown. Locurto picking the ball up on the goal line and returning it to the Adams 30. Lazaro fumbled and recovered for a six-yard loss. Locurto lost five more on an attempted end run. Probst dropped back to punt and Jerry rushed in and blocked the kick, which was recovered by Bucci who ran for a touchdown. Adamo made the extra point this time. New Castle 25, John Adams 0.

Scoreless Third Period
The third period was a scoreless affair with neither team threatening the goal line. New Castle with a 25-point lead was content to kick frequently. New Castle did set the stage for the fifth touchdown in the dying moments of the third period, when Roberts passed to Bucci for a first down on the Adams 12-yard line after having gained the ball on an exchange of punts.

Joe Izzi, who had replaced Lee at fullback for New Castle, made three yards at tackle and then from the Adams 9-yard line Roberts ran the ball over for the final marker of the game. Adamo again missed the extra point. New Castle 31, John Adams 0.

Friedman Breaks Leg
A sad misfortune occurred midway in the third period when Sidney "Skipper" Friedman, the John Adams right end, suffered a broken leg. The break occurred midway between the knee and ankle. He was removed to the Jameson Memorial hospital. The accident cast a gloom over the crowd.

Friedman's injury in the third period resulted from his attempt to tackle a New Castle ball carrier, and somehow twisting his leg.

New Castle had mostly a second and third string team on the field for the last part of the fourth period. The play was mostly in the middle of the field.

It was the seventh win of the year for the New Castle boys. The New Castle team goes to Johnstown next Saturday for their ninth game of the year.

Band And Chorus Make Big Hit At Football Game

Patriotic Songs Are Rendered By Chorus And Entire Grid Crowd

Patriotism of the highest order was displayed at Taggart Stadium last night at the New Castle-John Adams football game. The highlight of the ceremonies during the intermission was the unfurling of a huge red, white and blue shield 50 feet by 50 feet, in the middle of the field.

The band was arranged on both sides of the huge shield as it was laid on the ground. Robert Duff, the New Castle High choral director led the singing of "God Bless America," "I Am An American," and "America."

At 7:30 o'clock, one-half hour before the start of the game, the American flag was raised with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" in which the New Castle High band played a part.

The following members of the American Legion assisted the high school boys and girls in the raising of the flag at the start of the game and also carried the huge shield from the field following the colorful and pretentious ceremonies—Harold Blewitt, George Moore, A. L. Conn, Chris Walker, Clarence Jarret, Fred Duff, Nick Speed and Karl Douglas.

Professor Joe Replogle had his fine 105 piece band at top form last night, their fine music being heard all over the East Side.

More displays of patriotism such as last night would not hurt. It was certainly an inspiring sight. The New Castle High chorus did a swell job.

One of the most amazing gains made by Capt. Milt Piepul of Notre Dame this year, according to Irish coaches, was for one yard—and a touchdown—against Carnegie Tech.

Piepul got a low pass from center on his shoetaps as he barreled toward the clashing lines, rose up and dived in one continuous motion for the score. It is believed the only time the Irish leader has dived over the line, since his specialty is running nearly erect and using lots of "hip slap" and drive to make his yards. Thrown off stride by the low pass, however, he instinctively took to the air to make the necessary yard.

NEW CASTLE TEAM TO DINE TONIGHT

The New Castle High football team will be given a dinner tonight at the Castleton Hotel as the guests of the Castle club members. The dinner will start at 7 o'clock.

Shenango Spills Union High, 13-0

Denny And O'Neil Cross Pay Dirt; Game Lures More Than 1,000 Fans

SHENANGO NEARS CLASS B HONOR

Shenango Township High's gridiron team moved a step nearer to the 1940 Lawrence County Class B gonfalon by mowing down a scrappy Union Township combination, 13-0, Friday afternoon on Shenango field.

From the spectators' standpoint, and there were more than 1,000 on hand, the clash was one of the most interesting witnessed on the East New Castle field in several seasons. Hard tackling, immaculate punting, accurate passing and 'heads up' ball produced an abundance of thrills.

Following a dull first period in which both teams punted on second and third down, fireworks exploded shortly after start of hostilities in the second chapter. From his own 40, Vernon Ringbloom, stocky Union fullback, took the ball on a fake punt, started toward left end, reversed his field and tore down the sidelines. He was finally shooed out of bounds on Shenango's 10.

Union Muffs Chance

Viton tried to buck over center but was tossed back to the 11. Ringbloom sneaked into a hole at left guard to Shenango's 10. Jaskaika dropped back and flipped a short aerial bomb to Viton who was damped on the 8. On fourth down, Ringbloom, fired by a horde of Shenango men, covered a pass into the end zone. Bob Pitzer batted the ball to the ground.

From the 20, O'Neil pushed his way to the 22. Then, Mike Stolica produced the second thrill by unloading a pass to Tommy O'Neil. The receiver proceeded to the 40 where the Union chasers tracked him down. O'Neil received splendid blocking from his Shenango mates.

On a similar play, Stolica to O'Neil, the Shenango fullback broke loose after grabbing the ball several yards from Union's line. He was in the open and enroute to fertile soil. He stumbled and was dropped on Union's 5. Denny was tossed for a yard loss. A 5-yard off-side penalty against Shenango followed.

Shenango Scores

A lateral, Denny to Stolica to the 15. Stolica next heaved the pelt to Pete Moran on the 3. On fourth down, Bob Denny plunged between right tackle and right guard for the first touchdown. A bad pass from center prevented O'Neil's attempt for the extra point.

Shenango took the field in the third, bent on protecting the margin. Union tried a few passes but was unable to penetrate deep into Shenango territory. Late in the final chapter, Colvert, Shenango tackle broke through and blocked Jaskolska's kick, Semonsky pouncing on the ball on Union's 21.

O'Neill marched to the 16 on a line buck and Denny followed to the 14. O'Neill again found a hole at center and reached the 10. O'Neill bulled through center for a touch-down. Denny plowed through right guard for Shenango's 13th marker.

For Shenango, Colvert and Sovesky were a thorn in the path of the Union ballcarriers. Bob Denny's punting provided an eye-arresting appeal. Stolica's passing and O'Neill's ball totting spearheaded Shenango's clicking attack. Jaskolska, Ringbloom, Carpenter and Taylor were outstanding for the losers.

Next Friday afternoon, Shenango and Bessemer meet at Bessemer for the 1940 championship.

NEW CASTLE TEAM TO DINE TONIGHT

The New Castle High football team will be given a dinner tonight at the Castleton Hotel as the guests of the Castle club members. The dinner will start at 7 o'clock.

Sports Cocktail:...A surprising number of local grid addicts are witnessing today's Cornell-Ohio State headliner in Ithaca, N. Y. Localites in the stand include: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Reiber, 235 Northview avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Speck, 224 Summer avenue; Jack Leiby, 1610 Highland avenue; Jake Raffel and son LeRoy of East Washington street; Forest Raffel, a student at Cornell, is in Cornell's cheering section.

For the odds department: Ben Franklin junior high school completed its grid season in Bob Ripley fashion. The Cunningham avenue piglet chasers finished the season undefeated and yet failed to record a triumph! All six battles ended in deadlocks! One of the draws, with George Washington junior high, netted Franklin a tie for the 1940 city junior high battle.

Diamond filers: Charley Gehring, the old Detroit standby, assures the sports world that he has played his final major league game. During the winter break winds, look for Frank Crosetti to be placed on the block. You can expect the Boston Red Sox to grab the Yankee fielder. Someone suggests that Cleveland moguls hold a lottery to see who draws the lucky number that would entitle the winner to the managerial post.

Dr. Jack Sutherland's ground system is equally effective in the pre-ranks. Sutherland's Dodgers lead the ranks in rushing. John V. Rockne, youngest son of the famous Rock, is displaying some of his dad's zip at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, where he is serving as captain of the grid combination of Jesuit high school. Not counting today's game, Texas A. & M. has won only two games at Waco in the last 20 years.

In one of the more popular mags, Jack Kearns, who piloted the great Jack Dempsey, tells all. "Dempsey broke rules, but no fighter 'went in to tank' for him," Kearns states. Regarding the Willard melee, Kearns says, "Dempsey smacked Jess down so viciously this Willard long maintained that Jack's gloves were loaded." And about Louis, Kearns would have picked Dempsey by a kayo.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Mike Jacobs, the Mr. Boxing of the World, asserts that a decline in boxing interest is due to a lack of opposition talent or high-class boxers. He asserts Joe Louis and Billy Conn outclass their fields which is true. Excepting for these there are few, if any, standouts. Jacobs claims he does not know the reason. Here's one for Mike to ponder over: Where are the great teachers like those of yesteryear, say Frinstance, the Mike Donovans, the Van Courts, the Tommy Ryans, the Adam Ryans, the Jimmie Duns, the Jimmie Deforests? Few of them are left. Now back to Louis. He outsmacks the field because he was taught by Jack Blackburn who came up the hard way and knew his gloves and Mike Conn? He stepped into knowledge lane when he shook hands with Johnny Ray who knows the ring game from B to G. There are others like Jimmie Dunn who are equally versed but who recently have not been able to secure material from which pugilistic champions can be moulded. If the Mike Gibbons, Johnny Kilbanes, Jack Brittons, Johnny Griffiths and others of that ilk were to turn trainer and take their work seriously, Uncle Mike wouldn't need to wait so long for a 'Stand-Out' to flare forth across the pugilistic horizon. To those accustomed to having watched the Masters of Yesteryear drill and handle fighters it is somewhat amusing to see some of the present era type in action.

Wabash Bears At Aliquippa

The Wabash Bears football team of the Seventh ward will journey to Aliquippa on Sunday to battle the Aliquippa Indians at 2:30 o'clock at the Aliquippa High field.

The players are asked to meet tonight at the clubhouse at 5 o'clock for a blackboard drill. The Bears have the distinction of being the only team to upset the Indians at home in four years, having turned the trick last year. The valley boys will be out for revenge, tomorrow afternoon.

Willie Domenick, president of the Bears wants all of the players to meet at the clubhouse at 12 o'clock on Sunday to make the Aliquippa trip.

Duquesne Wins Over Manhattan

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26—Duquesne University's local night game scheduled was concluded today with a 10-6 victory over Manhattan which served as the impetus for restoring some of the Duke's prestige lost when Mississippi last week broke the red and blue's two-year perfect record.

Duquesne, clearly the master in first downs and yardage, took to the air for its touchdown in the third quarter, converted, and then in the past period left end John Rokisky added a 32 yard field goal to clinch the game. John Supulski, Manhattan back, passed 22 yards shortly after the game began to give the visitors their only score.

Bernie Crimmins, junior Notre Dame fullback from Louisville, Ky. has carried the ball 10 times from scrimmage in three games and he has scored four touchdowns. One of the counters came on a pass interception against Carnegie Tech.

Bernie's 24 points rank him second to Steve Juzwik's 25 in scoring. Capt. Milt Piepul is third with 23.

Dom DiMaggio, of the Boston Red Sox, is rated by many baseball experts as the best fielder since Tris Speaker. In 90 games Dom had 14 assists and started five double plays.

Other bouts already arranged are: Toughie Emerick, McKeesport, vs. Jack Zagorsky, Warren; 147 pounds. Tommy Borken, Warren, vs. Eddie Heck, McKees Rocks.

Louie Carliko, Youngstown, vs. Charlie Broden, McKeesport.

The first amateur bout will start at 8:30 a. m. In order to take care of the anticipated "standing room only" crowd, doors will open at 7:30 p. m. Ring officials will be appointed at 8:30 p. m.

George F. Anderson, an old California star is the new track coach at Brown.

Moran Says He's Ready For Fight In Arena, Monday

"Will Offer No Alibi Should Carter Drop Him Again"

KOWALIK, "REGAL", LEASURE TO BOX

"I am in splendid condition. If I lose Monday night I will have no alibi to offer. However, I do not believe I will lose. In fact, I am confident I will reverse the verdict in the Arena when I box Grover Carter of Aliquippa."

So spoke Frankie Moran, New Castle southpaw, of his Monday night's boxing bout with Grover Carter, who scored a two-round technical knockout over Moran at Ellwood City recently.

Moran and Carter have been training vigorously for two weeks. Moran and the Aliquippa featherweight are two of the best featherweights in this district and there should be a real explosion of fistic pyrotechnics.

Up to the time that Carter caressed Moran with a TKO he had been outpointed only by Smokey Robinson, who not long ago became national A. A. U. lightweight king. Carter's win sent his stock booming skyward.

Neither will do any boxing tomorrow. Instead they'll go through light routine work. Neither has as much as a blemish on their bodies. A fast fight is anticipated.

There ought to be a barrel of action when Mike Wukas, Aliquippa jumping-jack, battles with Nick Delmark of Youngstown at 147 in the three-round semi-final.

In another bout which, like all the bouts carded for three rounds, Steve Kowalik, McKeesport, often tried and found true welterweight, will tackle a "mystery fighter."

The said "mystery fighter" is a student from Slippery Rock State Teachers college and has chosen the name "Frank Regal". He is not Larry Regal of Butler. Both weigh 147. Just what "Regal" can do remains a query.

Indications are Billy Reale, the Castewood plow-boy, and Lee Leasure, the "Canoe Kid", will fight Monday night. Reale is a loop'em socker while the "Canoe Kid" stopped his opponent in his first amateur fight.

Other bouts already arranged are: Toughie Emerick, McKeesport, vs. Jack Zagorsky, Warren; 147 pounds. Tommy Borken, Warren, vs. Eddie Heck, McKees Rocks.

Louie Carliko, Youngstown, vs. Charlie Broden, McKeesport.

The first amateur bout will start at 8:30 a. m. In order to take care of the anticipated "standing room only" crowd, doors will open at 7:30 p. m. Ring officials will be appointed at 8:30 p. m.

Ellwood Red Cross
Appeals To Adults

Nation-Wide Campaign Being Conducted To Reduce Toll Of Home Accidents

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 26—Participating in the nation-wide campaign to bring about a reduction in the "appalling total of death and injuries caused by home and farm accidents," the Ellwood City Red Cross chapter today appealed for the cooperation of all adults in this undertaking in which the school teachers and the school children of Ellwood City have already enlisted.

"It is a startling and unpleasant fact that home accidents are responsible for more than one-third of the total number of deaths from all accidents, and that the farm accident toll is greater than that of any other occupation or industry," declared W. Boyd Barrett, who has charge of the accident prevention survey of the Ellwood City Red Cross chapter.

"This does not take into account," he said, "the tremendous total of non-fatal injuries and the direct loss of medical attention and wages. National Safety Council statistics show that in addition to the 31,500 who lost their lives in home accidents in 1938 there were 4,650,000 injured, including 140,000 who sustained permanent disabilities, and that the direct costs of these deaths and injuries were approximately $600,000,000.

"Accidental deaths in the home," Mr. Barrett continued, "are chiefly the result of falls, which last year took 15,500 lives, or 52 per cent of the total. The next most important type was burns and explosions, which accounted for 5,300 deaths. Poisoning, not including gas, was responsible for 1,600 deaths; mechanical suffocation, 1,200, most of whom were infants; poison gases, 1,000; firearms, 1,000 and all other causes, 4,900. Among the latter are listed electric shock, injuries from household pets and from kitchen and other household equipment."

Deaths from work accidents on farms numbered about 4,300 last year, or 26 per cent of the all-industry total, it was revealed. The total number of farm accidents was estimated in excess of 100,000, and the two principal agents of farm accidents were machinery and animals, which together accounted for more than one-half of the farm accident deaths.

Other agents cited were excessive heat, largely resulting from work in the fields, 10 per cent; falls, nine percent; vehicular accidents, nine percent; and lightning, five percent. About four per cent were killed by falling trees and all other types totaled 14 per cent.

Emphasis was placed on the fact that it is not reasonable to put the blame for such accidents on the agent when the real cause, more often than not, lies with the individual, in the exercise of poor judgment, or his lack of knowledge, experience or skill.

The school children and teachers of Ellwood City, together with millions of others in public, private and parochial schools throughout the country, will cooperate with the Red Cross by taking home check lists of accident hazards commonly found in the home and on the farm.

"This method of accident prevention," Mr. Barrett said, "is vitally important to every member of this community. It can be made effective, with consequent saving of life and lessening of injuries, only through the assistance of the adults as well as the children. They can form discussion groups in accident prevention. Excellent material for the purpose, which can be used to good advantage by social, civic and fraternal organizations, is readily obtainable through the Ellwood City Red Cross chapter, where additional copies of the printed check list can also be secured.

Kindergarten Work At Pearson Street Center

Orange crates and a large sunny unfurnished school room have helped to create a second home for a group of interesting youngsters in the most important years of their life span, those of the first five years of their childhood. New Castle is among the first in this section of the state to have pre-school, or kindergarten, in Pearson Street Community Center Building.

Miss Eve Nicklin and Mrs. Agnes Howley, county workers in children's activities, originated the idea and with the aid of several state authorities, and rules and regulations have built up the present cheerful pre-school which takes place daily in the school building from a mere idea which was put into force last December 4. This includes only youngsters, aged three and four, during the morning session from 9 to 11 and the youngsters, aged four and one-half to five years, during the afternoon sessions from 1 to 3.

Slate blackboards of the school room were transformed into entertaining juvenile storied murals by cheerful wall paper and paintings and gay chintzes are hung at the windows. With powdered chalk the teachers in the school depict the various seasons of the year and different stories on the windows. First grade desks were found, the legs shortened, painted a gay color, and used for various activities. Card tables, with the legs and supports shortened, were covered with brightly colored linoleum.

Toys in the school room are articles which can be used for many various stories and imaginative playing, such as a sturdy ladder which has been in turn, a fire engine, bathtub, piano, police wagon, etc. Horses are made from orange crates again with logs and heads carved in old "Dapple Grey" style. Orange crates are fronted in the clever planes which the children use.

Most important was the fact that some sort of arrangement had to be made whereby the children could take a rest period so orange crates were built with supports and hung from the side walls. When not in use, they fold up neatly against the wall and when in use they unhook from the wall and form sturdy beds for little backs to rest against.

Each child has been taught to select the article, which appeals to him the most, and each of his articles in the school room, blankets, lunch boxes, glass and coat hanger, have been tagged with a picture of the article which he selected, thus making it easier for him to always choose his own possessions.

This whole set up marks a place where children are eager for creative co-operation, mothers are eager for knowledge, and teachers totally interested in their work.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Teeth are more commonly diseased than any other part of the body. Apparently this has always been so.

Dental defects were recorded as early as 3700 B. C. We have always heard tooth decay followed civilized diets.

Primitive people have less tooth decay, it is true. A fully developed tooth is hard and inelastic.

It performs definite, mechanical functions. During mastication teeth sustain a tremendous crushing strain.

The solid parts of teeth undergo internal changes very slowly. But teeth are weak in powers of self-repair.

They have no capacity for self-replacement.

Dental caries can be controlled by early examination and treatment.
